Introduction to the Guide

This guide was designed to be a comprehensive list of the resources available for children who have Down Syndrome and their families. Your child’s individual needs will determine which resources will be beneficial. We advise you to use this guide as a tool in conjunction with your child’s health care provider in order to receive the most relevant services for your family.

After your child is born, it is important to meet with your health care provider and contact the relevant organizations listed under “Early Intervention Services”. These services can have lengthy waitlists at times.

Introduction to Health Care Team

Physicians – Physicians are health care professionals who diagnose and treat diseases and disorders. They are also involved in the promotion and maintenance of health. You child’s physicians will play an important role in managing your child’s medical and developmental concerns.

Physiotherapists – Physiotherapists are health care professionals who help their patients improve their mobility and physical abilities, as well as rehabilitate after an injury or illness. Physiotherapist interventions include physical exercises, specialized equipment, and patient education.

Occupational Therapists – Occupational therapists are health care professionals concerned with improving their patients’ ability to live, work, and play well. Occupational therapists can teach their patients new skills, evaluate and adapt environments, and modify tasks in order to help their patients achieve their individual goals.

Speech Language Therapists – Speech language pathologists are health care professionals who specialize in assessing and treating problems with communication and swallowing.

Audiologists – Audiologists are health care professionals who specialize in assessing, preventing, and treating hearing and balance disorders. Audiologists can prescribe a variety of assistive devices, and can counsel their patients on ways to improve communication.
Contact Log

It is helpful to keep a record of the communication you have with various agencies and service providers concerning your child and their development. The following Contact Log can be a useful tool.
