Resource Directory for Children and Youth with Down Syndrome
Toronto

Introduction to the Guide

This guide was designed to be a collection of resources available for children and youth who have Down syndrome and their families. This guide is not meant to be “homework” for you and your family, but is meant to serve as a resource collection since it can be difficult to locate services that are appropriate for your child. We advise you to use this guide as a tool in conjunction with your child’s health care providers in order to receive the most relevant services for you and your family. Resources are separated into categories, and while most organizations and services listed here are free of charge, those followed by a ($) have a fee associated with them.

After your child is born, it is important to meet with your health care provider and contact the relevant organizations listed under Early Intervention Services. These services can have lengthy waitlist times. In addition, if you are worried about a new or worsening health concern, please contact your health care provider.

The Down Syndrome Program does not specifically endorse any of the following organizations. Our goal is to provide you with a resource guide where all the organizations have been appraised and verified to offer support to children with Down syndrome and their families.

Introduction to the Health Care Team

Physicians: Physicians are health care professionals who diagnose and treat diseases and disorders. They are involved in the promotion and maintenance of health. Your child’s physicians will play an important role in managing your child’s medical and developmental concerns.

Physiotherapists: Physiotherapists are health care professionals who help their patients improve their mobility and physical abilities, as well as rehabilitate after an injury or illness. Interventions include physical exercises, specialized equipment, and patient education.

Occupational Therapists: Occupational therapists are health care professionals concerned with improving their patients’ ability to live, work, and play well. They can teach their patients new skills, evaluate and adapt environments, and modify tasks in order to help their patients achieve their individual goals.

Speech Language Therapists: Speech language therapists are health care professionals who specialize in assessing and treating problems with communication and swallowing.

Audiologists: Audiologists are health care professionals who specialize in assessing, preventing, and treating hearing and balance disorders. They can prescribe a variety of assistive devices, and can counsel their patients on ways to improve communication.

Every licensed child care program in the City of Toronto has an assigned Special Needs Resource person, that provides support needed. The age range provided is from infant to school age. The link provides a child care locator and separates centres by ward/location. It also provides information on Aboriginal programs, services in French, Toronto early learning and child care centres, home child care agencies, and schools with full-day kindergarten before-and after-school program.

In addition to the resource with general information on child care facilities across the city, parents are often looking for guidance with specific organizations that other families with Down syndrome children have had success with. This resource guide lists a few. This is not a comprehensive list, and the Down Syndrome Program is not endorsed or sponsored by any of the following facilities. Most organizations listed here are free of charge, however names followed by a ($) have a cost associated with them. Child care centres that support children on supplemental oxygen are noted.

Centennial Infant and Child Centre (Preschool Program)
www.cicc.ca
580 Yonge St, Toronto, Ontario
416-935-0200

Children entering the program are between the ages of 2 1/2 and 4 years. The program runs weekday mornings and afternoons from September to June and follows the holidays designated by the public school system. About 20% of the children who attend the preschool program are children who do not have special needs. Children with special needs attending the preschool benefit from a one-to-one adult/child ratio. Each child has an individual program plan developed by their primary teacher and their parents in consultation with a physiotherapist, occupational therapist and speech/language pathologist. The program covers the developmental areas of cognition, communication, self help skills, social, and motor skills. Individual programs are updated regularly, and the goals are implemented every day by the classroom teachers and the child’s volunteer (an individual that works one-to-one with the child).

Financial Support
The following list provides information on potential financial supports available to your family. There is information on the type of financial support, the source of support, eligibility criteria, application processes, and maximum amounts. It is important to remember that not all families are eligible for all of the following, and many supports are income dependent. In addition, not all support options are applicable to children of all ages. Please ask your physician or nurse to help clarify if you have any questions.

Child Disability Benefit (Canada Revenue Agency)
www.cra-arc.gc.ca/cdb/
The Child Disability Benefit (CDB) is a tax-free benefit paid to families or individuals who care for a disabled child. Each family has different circumstances and the calculations vary. The CDB is for a child who is under the age of 18 and has a severe and prolonged impairment in physical or mental function. The CDB is paid out monthly to individuals who are eligible for the Canada Child Benefit, and also as a supplement to Children’s Special Allowances.

Referral: There is no specific application for this benefit. To qualify for this benefit, the individual must have submitted and been accepted for the Disability Tax Credit Certificate. This is an income based program, so please be aware that not everyone who receives the Disability Tax Credit will qualify for this additional benefit.

Amount: Maximum of $270 tax-free per child per month

Assistance for Children with Severe Disabilities (Government of Ontario)
www.children.gov.on.ca/htdocs/English/topics/specialneeds/disabilities/index.aspx
The Assistance for Children with Severe Disabilities (ACSD) Program helps parents with some of the extra costs of caring for a child who has a severe disability. A parent or a legal guardian whose child is under 18 years of age, lives at home, and has a severe disability is eligible to receive help under this program depending on the family's income. How much a family receives will depend on the family's income, the severity of the disability, and the kind of difficulties the child has.

Referral: Contact your local regional office and ask for an application form (parent referral). Complete the application form and return it to the regional office along with any documentation asked for. A Special Agreements Officer will review your application and will contact you if they need more information.

Amount: $25 to $440 per child per month

Registered Disability Savings Plan (Government of Ontario)
www.cra-arc.gc.ca/rdsp/
A registered disability savings plan (RDSP) is a savings plan that is intended to help parents and others save for the long term financial security of a person who is eligible for the disability tax credit (DTC). Contributions to an RDSP are not tax deductible and can be made until the end of the year in which the beneficiary turns 59. Contributions that are withdrawn are not included in income for the beneficiary when they are paid out of an RDSP. However, the Canada disability savings grant (grant), the Canada disability savings bond (bond), investment income earned in the plan, and rollover amounts are included in the beneficiary's income for tax purposes when they are paid out of the RDSP. Beneficiaries must be eligible for the disability tax credit (DTC), have a valid social insurance number (SIN), be a Canadian resident, and be under the age of 60.

Referral: Anyone can contribute to the RDSP

Amount: Not Applicable

Special Services at Home (Government of Ontario)
www.children.gov.on.ca/htdocs/English/topics/specialneeds/specialservices/index.aspx
The Special Services at Home program helps families who are caring for a child with a developmental or physical disability. The program helps families pay for special services in or outside the family home as long as the child is not receiving support from a residential program. The amount of money a family receives depends on the type and amount of service the child needs, what other help is available in the community, and what kind of support the family is already receiving. Children with a developmental or physical disability (or their families) can apply for this money if they live in Ontario, need more support than most families can provide, are living at home with their family, or if they are not living at home with their family and are not being helped by other residential services. Referral: Download and complete application form available online (parent referral), with attached medical or psychological assessment describing the disability, necessary services, and cost. Amount: Maximum of $3700 per year

Child Care Fee Subsidy (City of Toronto)

Child care fee subsidy is financial assistance provided by the City of Toronto to help eligible families with the cost of licensed child care. The website listed above has a link to a child care fee subsidy calculator. Families with children up to 12 years old who meet the following criteria can apply: your family lives in Toronto; is moving to Toronto or you are an employee of the City of Toronto, each parent/guardian is employed, looking for work, in school or planning to go to school, and each parent/guardian has submitted their most recent Income Tax Return. If you are a new immigrant to Canada this year or if you are a teen parent, you may apply without your most recent Tax Return, or if you or your child has a special need. Referral: Download and complete application form available online (parent referral), with either the income on your most recent Canada Child Tax Benefit statement (CCTB) or your Revenue Canada, Notice of Assessment (NOA) or Notice of Reassessment. The application must also include the names of three child care programs you are interested in. Parents should phone and visit each child care program to make sure it meets your family's needs. Amount: No set amount
